

Athletics New Zealand Information Privacy Policy

Your Right to Privacy

We, at Athletics New Zealand understand the importance of protecting your right to privacy and have therefore prepared this statement to help you understand how we aim to protect the privacy of your personal information.

In this document we outline what details we keep about you and why we need these details. The Privacy Amendment (Private Sector) Act 2000 amended the Privacy Act (from 21 December 2001) to include laws that regulate the way private organisations, like Athletics New Zealand, handle personal information, including very sensitive information.

The Act contains 10 National Privacy Principles that regulate, among other things, how organisations collect, store and protect the quality of personal information. Also, how these organisations should use and share personal information with other organisations. The National Privacy Principles form part of all our procedures and policies and the way personal information and details are administered.

What Personal Information Will Athletics New Zealand Keep About Me?

Athletics New Zealand collects personal information from clients and other associates to assist in providing our range of products and services. The type of personal information we collect about you may include your name, address, telephone number, fax number, email address, company and/or business information and details and other details appropriate to the products and services Athletics New Zealand provides.

Athletics New Zealand collects personal information when users use the Athletics New Zealand website to lodge their personal details, resume, company details and information, and when users change or update any of these details, or if users send Athletics New Zealand documents containing personal information.

Risks of Using the Internet

You should note that there are security risks in transmitting information via the internet. You should assess these potential risks when deciding whether to use our on-line services. If you do not wish to transmit information via the Athletics New Zealand website, there are other ways in which you can provide this information, such as by mail, telephone or on-site visit.

Collection of Browser Information

When you browse the Athletics New Zealand website, our service provider logs the following information for statistical purposes:

- your server address;
- top level domain name (for example .com, .gov, .au, etc.);
- the date and time of your web-site visit;
- the pages you looked at;

- the documents you down-loaded;
- the previous site you visited; and
- the type of browser you used.

We will not try to identify users or their browsing activities except, in the event of an investigation, where a law enforcement agency may exercise a warrant to inspect the service provider's logs. The Athletics New Zealand website is 'cookie' free, which means we will not send you any unsolicited information after you have accessed our website. We will only record your e-mail address if you send us a message. It will not be added to a mailing list unless specifically requested by the user.

Why Does Athletics New Zealand Need My Personal Information?

The personal information Athletics New Zealand collects about you is used to correspond with you and to provide you with other products and services from Athletics New Zealand.

If you choose not to provide your personal information, it may mean that we will not be able to provide these services to you.

There are other organisations that are connected to the services we provide to you and which may have access to your personal information. They are:

- Member and affiliated organisations of Athletics New Zealand
- Web development companies - organisations contracted to develop and maintain the Athletics New Zealand website.
- Auditors and Regulators - organisations that ensure Athletics New Zealand are complying with legislation and contractual obligations.
